I've always believed that good governance, strong policy, and sound decision-making are the only way forward. Over the last four years as a Councillor for the Shire of Harvey, I've built on that belief by gaining experience, developing my skills, and completing the Diploma of Local Government Elected Member. This has given me the tools to step up, contribute strongly, and advocate for our community.

During my time on council, I've seen how important it is to focus on transparency, accountability, and long-term planning. Decisions made today must not only work for the present, but also prevent legacy issues that would otherwise be left for future generations. I believe in being the advocate in the room who makes sure the community's voice is heard and considered in every discussion.

What you see in a profile only tells part of the story. Being a councillor takes time, energy, and real sacrifice. It means long nights, tough conversations, and constantly weighing competing needs. These are challenges I've committed myself to, because I believe that serving the community comes first, no matter the cost.

At 30, I bring energy and fresh ideas, but also the experience of serving through growth and challenges. My focus is on fairness, sustainability, and planning that balances progress with protecting the values and lifestyle that make our Shire unique. That includes ensuring infrastructure, housing, and services are planned responsibly while safeguarding our environment for the future.

My commitment is simple: to continue representing residents with honesty and integrity, and to make sure every decision reflects the needs and aspirations of our community. I believe in building a Shire where future generations inherit opportunities, not problems, and where growth is matched with responsible planning and strong governance.

I'm seeking re-election to continue being a strong, committed voice at the table for you, and to ensure our Shire's future is secure, sustainable,
